GENERAL SITUATION

A depression between France and Italy is bringing weak and humid southwesterly currents. On Monday, a cold front from the north with cold air at high altitudes will pass through the region. Then, a high-pressure system will extend over Europe, bringing decidedly cold and dry northerly currents.

MONDAY, 17 March 2025

Reliability 60%

In the morning, the sky will be overcast, improving throughout the day with wide clearings. Scattered precipitation is possible, generally weak or moderate, more likely over the pre-Alpine belt and the upper plains at night and in the afternoon, alternating with long dry periods. Snow level around 1000-1300 meters, temporarily dropping to about 700 meters. In the evening, a moderate and cold Bora wind will blow along the coast. Minimum temperatures in the evening.
